

Nearly three-quarters of farmworkers earn less than $10,000/year.

Meatpacking workers suffer double the injury & illness rate of all U.S. manufacturing.

Unpaid overtime is a frequent violation in food processing.

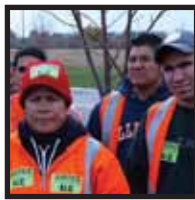

WHO'S BEHIND YOUR FOOD?

On average, restaurant workers earn only $12,868 annually.

Warehouse workers often work for temp agencies for minimum wage.

23% of grocery store workers are paid less than the minimum wage, and 65% aren't paid overtime.

5 of the 8 worst-paying jobs in the U.S. are in our food system, and food workers face some of the most difficult and dangerous working conditions.

20 million people, many of whom are people of color and immigrants, work in the U.S. food system. Most are paid poverty wages, do not receive health insurance or paid sick days, and suffer a high rate of illnesses and injuries. Due to this, workers along the food chain have joined together to form the Food Chain Workers Alliance (FCWA), a coalition of worker-based organizations whose members plant, harvest, process, pack, transport, prepare, serve and sell food.

The FCWA works to improve wages and working conditions for all food system workers and aims to build a more sustainable food system that respects workers' rights – based on the principles of social, environmental and racial justice – in which everyone has access to healthy and affordable food. FCWA program areas include corporate campaigns, worker solidarity, evaluation of certification programs and labor standards, policy and education.

FOOD IS A HUMAN RIGHT. THE HUMAN RIGHTS OF THOSE WHO PRODUCE OUR FOOD, FROM FIELD TO TABLE, MUST BE RESPECTED, TOO.
